To-day you can go fishing—for Labor Day is the day you don't labor.

To-morrow you can come around and "fish" through our bright, fresh stock of fall fabrics for your favorite suiting. A good assortment of flannels here, with brown cheviots and unfinished worsteds predominating. Yet they're not staid solid browns, but browns that have been lightened and brightened by exquisitely classic, quiet combinations of dark red, orange, dark green or blue plaids, stripes or solids.

ELABORATE FUNCTION ON MACHINERY DAY

Largest Reception and Fete in the History of the Exposition.

4,000 INVITATIONS ISSUED.

Business Will Be First on the Programme September 10, but Evening Will Be Devoted to Pleasure.

Machinery Day, Saturday, September 10, is to be distinctive among special days at the Exposition, because among its other attractions it will be a social event. The day will be the occasion for the most elaborate society function that has ever been held at the World's Fair.

The celebration of the day will be two-fold in its nature, two functions, one for the day and the other for the night, being planned. Of the two the evening function will be by far the more elaborate and the list of invited guests, of whom there will be about 4,000, will include President Roosevelt, the members of the Cabinet, members of the Senate, members of the House of Representatives, the members of the Supreme Court, the Diplomatic Corps, the Governors and Lieutenant Governors of States, the Foreign commissions to the Exposition, the State commissions to the Exposition, the Board of Lady Managers and other distinguished persons.

The function will take the form of a reception and fete, the territory to be covered being Machinery Hall, Machinery Gardens, the Steam, Gas and Fuel building and the Imperial Japanese reservation and gardens on the hillside adjoining the Machinery Hall. For the evening event the platform will be enlarged to accommodate 4,000 guests, including the most prominent women in official circles, including the wives of Expedition officials, army and naval officers, the wives of the Board of Lady Managers and the ladies of the University and St. Louis Club sets, besides the leaders of South Side society.

A large dancing platform will be erected north of the main and northern central entrance of Machinery Hall, leading into the Machinery Hall. The platform will be carpeted and the whole will form a magnificently decorated pavilion. A similar pavilion will be reared in the space from the main entrance to the east side to the banks of the lagoon, and this will be used for the supper-room.

BID $100 FOR BUILDING
WHICH COST $18,500.

Arkansas Commission Rejects Dozen Offers for State Pavilion at World's Fair.

For the Arkansas building at the World's Fair, which structure cost $15,000, the Arkansas Commission has been offered sums ranging from $100 to $1,000. All of the bids for the purchase of the pavilion have been rejected, and it will be disposed of at private sale.

The Arkansas Commission is the first to advertise the sale of the State building. A dozen bids were received, and at a meeting of the commission Saturday they were opened. The highest sum offered was considerably too low, and the commission decided to wait for any offer of a reasonable amount.

A resident of St. Louis who is a native of Arkansas, has submitted a proposal to purchase the building and to contribute $10,000 toward its erection. He will confer with him others as soon as possible.

A representative of the Arkansas Commission believes it will make satisfactory disposition of the building before the Fair closes.

Rhode Island building has been sold to John Hansen of St. Louis, while the Oregon and Maine buildings have publicly been offered for sale.
